Nicknamed Urika-GX, the new system is the first agile anaís to merge supercomputing with an open business structure, Cray said. It affects the way work trainers show workers how to perform tasks and ensures that managers understand the seriousness of a situation in the event of a spill or a worker coming into contact with hazardous material when they are not wearing the proper protective equipment.The role of MSDSs in transportCouriers and road drivers need to have access to MSDSs in the event that chemicals spill in transit and need to be cleaned or the vehicle is involved in an accident. The sheets also tell workers what to do in the event of spillage or accidental exposure to hazardous materials.Managers use MSDSs to determine what types of PPE workers should have available when working with a specific chemical or hazardous product. Cray's offer is also distinguished by its emphasis on high-speed networks, Rouda added. The Urika-GX is a 19-inch standard rack with industry-standard Intel Xeon processors, up to 22 TB of DRAMs and up to 1,728 cores per system. Copyright © 2016 IDG Communications, Inc. Other vendors that take a similar approach include Oracle and Teradata. Hi 35TB of SSD storage and 192TB of hard disk storage per rack. "One trend that Cray can capitalize on is moving toward devices, or systems designed for big data," Rouda said. The markets for big data and high-performance computing are beginning to blur, said Nik Rouda, senior analyst at Enterprise Strategy Group. Looking ahead, ESG predicts that an ever-growing proportion of the market will choose this option as its main deployment model due to benefits including performance, deployment time and support capacity, he said. Checking MSDS after exposure to chemicals helps o o rizuder e atospxe aerjÁ a rapmil ed ovitejbo o moc ocimÁuq otnemazav mu s'Ápa sadasu oEÁs m©Ábmat sSDSMlatneibma azezpil ed saicnªÁgã.sadacilpa majes sadauqeda sorrococ sorienmp ed sadidem sa euq ritnarag a impact. Enter Cray, who on Tuesday unveiled a new supercomputing platform designed with this in mind. It also uses the Cray Aries high-speed interconnect. Companies say that workers should be allowed to read, according to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, or OSHA. Although drivers Á Á are usually responsible for handling hazardous materials in the same way as workers in a facility as a factory are, they can still contact the products they are dealing with,First responders and MSDSsIf anyone is injured by hazardous materials at work, the first responders who administer first aid need to understand what they are dealing with in order to offer adequate care. Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS) list the potential hazards associated with chemicals and other products and inform users and security personnel how to safely work around these items. An MSDS provides µ information on first aid tasks such as flushing your eyes with Water or keeping Water away from the affected Area, depending on the material involved. The © system is tuned for highly iterative and interactive analysis, and integrated graphics analysis offers fast µ matching. Features can be dynamically reset and an open framework allows customization. This can affect the purchasing department because supplies must be ordered and available before workers use the item. With preintegrated and standards-based software, the system can go live in just a few days, Cray promised. promised.
